MONTGOMERY CITY, Mo., Dec. 2.—The most exciting burglary and killing in the history of our city occurred here last night with J. R. Hance, the merchant, and Jordan Copen, a mulatto about 19 years of age, active participants. The facts, briefly stated, are about these: For some time past Hance has seen evidences that his store was being entered by robbers at night and he thought last night he would catch the parties. So early in the evening he secreted himself in one of the inner rooms, after ordering the store doors closed, with directions that Coy Sheets, one of the clerks, return and enter through the Allen street door to the grocery department. At about 9:15 o'clock the robber entered the remote part of the wareroom through a window and just at the same time Sheets entered as directed. Hance, going to Sheets, revealed the plan for the capture of the intruder. Sheets was sent to the main room in the region of the cashier's office, and Hance followed the slow, careful and light footsteps of the robber, who was soon found at the money drawer, when Hance ordered him to come out. The robber answered with curses and threats to shoot, kill and murder Hance and at the same time advancing toward him with his right hand extended to a shooting position. Hance told him not to come nearer; that if he did he would shoot him. He then attempted to break through the front door on Second street, still in the most violent manner cursing and threatening Hance, who fired on him a second time. At this time City Marshal Short came, when the door was opened and the burglar was captured. He had in the meantime been identified as Jordon Copen. A surgeon was called who declared Copen's wounds fatal, one being in the region of the heart. Jordon died about an hour and a half later. An inquest was held to-day and the above facts were developed by the testimony. Copen served a term in the county jail in 1883 for robbing a store. It is said that he had a comrade in crime, whose name he gave just before death.

Two Boys in a Bad Scrape.

MARSHFILD, Mo., Dec. 2.—The two brothers, Daniel and George Moore, arrested Monday for the murder of George Ludwig Gumbel, whose dead body was found lying by the 'Frisco railroad track near Nyangua, in this county, last Sunday, made a confession yesterday. They give their ages as 16 and 14 years, respectively, and their exact residence as the Grand Opera block, Indianapolis, Ind. When they were first arrested by Sheriff Murphy they claimed that their parents lived at Sleeper, a small place within seven miles of this city, but shortly afterwards they confessed that their residence was as above stated. They are nephews of Mrs. Hedges, a lady who keeps a small store at Long Lane, a county postoffice sixteen miles west of Lebanon, and ran away from home in Indianapolis about six weeks ago. About ten days ago they left their aunt's residence after stealing $12 and some jewelry, and went to Springfield for a few days, and then started back east with the young German whose body was found as stated. They at first strongly denied the killing or stealing from the aunt, but admitted that they were related to Mrs. Hedges, who was in the city and stated that the boys had stolen the money and jewelry. Geo. Moore is smfill of his age, with dark eyes and hair. Dan is of medium size, light complexion and hair, and has blue eyes. Both are rather poorly dressed. The object of the murder was evidently plunder, as the pockets of their victim were turned inside out. The boys say their mother is a widow, and that they have a brother and two sisters at their home in Indianapolis. Their father has been dead ten years. Their story of the crime is they met Gumbel here on Saturday night and agreed to go with him on foot to St. Louis, they having determined to return to their home, satisfied that they had made a mistake in running away to the west. As they journeyed along the railroad track they were suddenly overcome by a sense of fear that Gumbel would kill them. So Dan drew a revolver and shot Gumbel in the back of the head and then searched him but found no money. The boys are very much depressed in spirits and weep almost constantly. They, so far, have refused to eat except a few scanty morsels.

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 2.—James F. Chestnut, a farmer near Beatrice, moved last February to Norton county, Kas., and from there to Beaver City, Neb. He passed through Beatrice on his last trip to Kansas Oct. 10, last. On the evening of Nov. 15 he camped near Rice, Cloud county, Kas., with four horses and a spring wagon. The same evening a man named Wells, living near Rice, went out hunting returning late the same night and then disappeared. Nothing more was seen of him. Four days afterwards the dead body of a man was found floating in the Republican river and recognized as the man who had camped near Rice. Wounds were found in his head, made by a charge of shot. Wells was suspected but could not be found, though it was said that he shipped two horses and a wagon to Augusta, Ill., under the name of Pace. The Kansas authorities went to Augusta, and not finding him, traced him to Macomb, Ill., where they found him in jail, indicted for forgery. He had possession of the horses and wagon and a trunk containing the name of J. T. Chestnut on a paper. Blood was also found on a coat and blanket in the trunk. Pictures were also found which were recognized as being likenesses of Chestnut. Wells, being accused of the crime, denied it, but the same night attempted suicide. Wells will be taken to Kansas and tried for murder.

FORT BOWIE, Ariz., Dec. 2.—The following is the most reliable information relative to the hostile Indians: A party of Indians under the lead of Josanie, brother of Chihuahua, were seen in the vicinity of Fort Apache on Nov. 23. The next day one of their number was killed in an attack upon a camp of White Mountain Indians, about eight miles southwest of Apache. The following day they attacked another camp of White Mountain Indians, about twenty miles from Apache. In these two attacks it is supposed they killed eleven women, four children, and five men and boys. On Nov. 28 the band stole some horses from an Indian camp on the Gila, about twenty miles west of San Carlos. On Nov. 25 they wounded a ranchman named Johnson near Black Rock, about fifteen miles southwest of Fort Thomas. Their trail leads in the direction of Aravipia canyon, indicating an intention to go south by the old trail either through the Dragoons or the Whetstones. There are numerous parties of troops and Indians after them. Captain Crawford has fifty Indian scouts in the Dragoons and the same number in the Whetstones. All troops on the line have been notified, and it is hoped the whole party will be killed or captured.

MONTICELLO, Mo., Dec. 2.—A special term of the circuit court for Lewis county is now in session here, presided over by Judge Andrew Ellison, of the twenty-seventh judicial circuit. The session is for the trial of Godsill Hecox, charged with grand larceny and burglary, in having broken into a granary and taken a quantity of grain therefrom in October, 1878. An indictment was found in Clark county and tried there the following year. The case is brought by a change of venue after having been to the circuit court and returned for another hearing. Hon. Ben. E. Turner, of this circuit, is disqualified from sitting in the case as he was acting attorney for the state when the indictment was found. The case is one of interest because of having been so long a time in the courts involving a great deal of costs, there being a large number of witnesses pro and con. Able counsel are retained for the defence. A week's time will probably be required to determine the result of trial.

Picnic in a Polish Church.

DETROIT, Dec. 2.—The troubles at St. Albert's Catholic church were resumed this morning, when Father Dombrowski and Jaworski, the newly appointed pastor, attempted to read the morning masses, and a crowd of 1,000 Polish women and a number of men were in the church. Each new arrival announced her advent by yelling like a Comanche Indian. The services were interrupted by yells and brandishing of fists, and women tried to get at the altar to remove the priests. Policemen were stationed at the heads of the aisles and prevented any progress toward the altar. One woman, Lizzie Jewardowski, climbed over the pews and succeeded in getting within the sanctuary, where she prayed and yelled by turns in Polish. Father Jaworski came forward to speak to the people but Eagerhard clutched him and tore his habit off. At this time there were thirty policemen in and about the edifice and the conflicts between the officers and the people were many. Fathers Jaworski and Dombrowski were pelted with mud while crossing the street on their return to their seminary opposite the church. The police cleared the street, but the crowd closed in making it impossible to prevent a fight.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—The Journal's Detroit special says another scene of tremendous uproar and excitement occurred this morning at Strather's Polish Catholic church. Both masses were drowned in the yells and screams of women, who packed the church and pelted the priests with chunks of dry mud, stones, etc. One of the new priests was attacked on the steps of the altar and his priestly robes torn from his back by the infuriated women. The priests feared for their lives and surrounded by thirty policemen ran at full speed across the street to a priest's house amid showers of stones and bricks. Several of the rioters were arrested. The streets became packed with a howling mob. At last Father Kolasinska, the deposed priest, appeared on the scene and was instantly surrounded by women and children who kissed his hands and vowed they would never have any priest but him. Father Kolasinski persuaded them to clear the street and all is now quiet. More trouble is sure to follow unless the bishop restores Kolasinski to his charge.

NEW SRAITSVILLE, O., Dec. 2.—Elmer Donnelly and several others were locked up last night for shooting and stealing. The mayor bound Donnelly over to court. About 2 o'clock this morning a dozen masked pals of the prisoners' went to the calaboose and demanded the keys and released the crowd.

UNDER THE HAMMER.

A Texas Railroad Sold at Auction to New York Capitalists.

Special Telegram to The Star.

TYLER, Tex., Dec. 2.—In accordance with the decree, order of sale and notice, the Texas & St. Louis railway and all its equipments and property were sold here to-day at public vendue by J. M. McCormack, special agent in chancery. The sale occurred at the court house. A large crowd of men, many of whom were from New York, St. Louis, Waco and Dallas, were in attendance. Colonel W. S. Herndon, of the firm of Herndon, Cain & Garrison, solicitors for complainants in the suit of foreclosure, mounted the steps of the court house and announced the foreclosure of the mortgages, the final decree, the amended decree, the order of sale and notices of sale. The amount of the first mortgage, liens and interest, is $4,708,557.58, and the amount of deventures, costs, fees and special liens about $1,500,000, in all over $6,009,000, for the satisfaction of which the road and property would be sold. The master, J. M. McCornmack, then read the order of sale and notices and schedules of property to be sold and then called for bids. David B. Ogden, of New York, bid the sum of $1,600,000 cash. This bid was cried for some time but no other being made the railroad and property were sold to Mr. Ogden, representing William Mertenz, George Coppell, Lewis T. Wolff, M. Gernshein and J. W. Laramore, composing the bondholders' committee. Mr. Ogden took a memorandum from the master and delivered to him a check for $500,009 as per terms of sale and the whole matter was settled. Thus the Texas & St. Louis railway has passed into new hands to become a standard guage road. The sale was conducted with good order and passed off smoothly.

A BIG FIGHT COMING.

Mexican Revolutionists Successful anda Prospect for a General Revolution.

GALVESTON, Dec. 2.—A special from Villa Garcia has the following details of the revolution in Nuevo Leon: The trouble seems to be that the people there are dissatisfied with the state government. The state officials deny this and charge the federal officials with secretly fomenting insurrection for the purpose of creating an opportunity for federal interference, which would lead to a proclamation of martial law and the appointment of a military governor. It is believed that the prime mover in the management of public affairs in the Republic of Mexico is Romero Robio, secretary of state, and father-in-law President Diaz. He is regarded as the power behind the throne. Before the adjournment of the legislature two weeks ago the acting governor was authorized to call on the president for federal assistance to put down the then anticipated revolution. President Diaz promised all the federal aid necessary. On the strength of this promise the state officials disbanded the state forces. No sooner was this done than the revolutionary chieftain caused uprisings and declared openly against the state governor. The acting governor immediately demanded federal assistance. President Diaz issued orders notifying Governor Sepulveda that General Reyis, commander of the federal forces in Monterey, would sustain the state government but General Reyis declined to furnish troops. The governor then abandoned Morterey, and took up his headquarters twenty miles south. Revolutionists, led by Manuel Rodriquez, reached the vicinity of Villageria Sunday afternoon. Governor Zepulvedo, fearing capture escaped, and crossed over into Coahuilas. The revolutionists attacked the governor's small forces, who lost two killed and five wounded; while the revolutionists, who were successful lost five killed and ten wounded. The state is now without a governor. Further fighting is expected at any hour. The inactivity of General Reyes leads to the common belief that the Federal government will immediately proclaim martial law in Nevada. All indications unmistakably point to a revolution of large proportions.

A Case of Smallpox.

Special Telegram to The Star.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—It was reported at the health office to-day that Louis Marlach, 19 years of age, and residing at No. 130 Ambrose street, had been attacked by smallpox. He was immediately removed to the smallpox hospital, the premises fumigated, and all the immediate neighborhood vaccinated. Marlach worked on the south side, but the place where he lived is within a block and a half of 279 Coulter street, where Mulligan, who was attacked with smallpox on Nov. 3 lived, and who died at the hospital on Nov. 10. Mulligan was buried by his family on Nov. 14, and it is thought that Marlach must have visited the house then and caught the disease.

DEATH IN THE BLAST.

EIGHT MEN ARE BLOWN SKYWARD

A Fatal Mistake Made by Miners—A Tugboat Blown Up—Two Men Killed—Terrible Work of a Pet Deer—The Fire Record and Other Casualties Reported.

Special Telegram to The Star.

OWINGSVILLE, Ky., Dec. 2.—There was another fearful accident to-day at the Slate creek iron ore mines, near Olympia and four miles south of this place, by which eight men were blown up by a blast. All were badly and perhaps fatally injured. John and Lafe Staten were operating a bank in partnership, and, after making a heavy blast, they set it off, and together with several others who were working close to them retired to a safe distance to await the explosion. After remaining away a considerable length of time and the discharge failing to occur they came to the conclusion that the fuse must be defective, and all ventured up for the purpose of replacing it with a good one. Just as they arrived in the vicinity of the blast it went off with the above result. At this time it is impossible to tell the full extent of all the injuries received by John and Lafe Staten. John Mountjoy and a young man by the name of Reffet are supposed to be fatally hurt. John Staten was blown fully twenty-five feet in the air, his body being fearfully bruised by the fragments of ore. Both of Reffet's eyes were blown out. The names of the other injured men have not been obtained. They were all day laborers and have families.

CAUSE OF MISHAP.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Dec. 2.—The accident to the boat Iron City, wrecked this morning was caused by natural gas. The boat struck a gas main and ruptured it. The gas caught fire from the furnace and explosion ensued. The injured are doing well except Galbrath, who will die. Insured for $3,000.

A Remarkable Accident.

DENVER, Dec. 2.—A strange and what may prove quite a serious accident occurred in the city of Gunnison last evening. As Mrs. Robt. Harris and Mrs. E. W. Eastman were taking a walk near the western edge of the town with a baby carriage containing an infant, they encountered a pet deer which immediately showed a disposition to fight. The mother grabbed the child from the carriage just as the deer fastened a horn in the wheels and sent the vehicle overhead. Rushing upon the woman with the infant, he gave them a similar toss, landing them in the brush near the roadside and badly bruised. While the other woman was endeavoring to avoid the sharp horns, a young man rushed to the rescue with a dog, but the angry beast settled the dog with one thrust and sprang upon the young man who fired two ineffectual shots from a revolver which only seemed to increase the deer's anger. He sprang upon the man and thrust one antler through the thigh, inflicting an ugly wound. As he stood over the prostrate victim a second man, who had been attracted to the scene killed the animal with a donble barreled shot gun. The injuries to the women are not serious.

A Tow Boat Blown up.

PITTSBURG, Dec. 2.—At Herr's island this morning, about 2 o'clock, the tow boat Iron City was blown to pieces killing one man and seriously injuring six others. The crew numbering six men were blown into the river. Engineer George Ashton was instantly killed; Fred Jackson was fatally injured, and others seriously. The vessel burned to the water's edge. It is a total loss. About 6 o'clock in the evening the Iron City in running down the river was swung onto a bar, where she went aground. Up to the time of the explosion the vessel tried to back off into deeper water, and shortly after 2 o'clock a final effort was made. The engines were forced to the fullest capacity, but the boilers could not stand the pressure and collapsed. The water was shallow and the crew, with the exception of Ashton and Jackson, reached the bar, from which they were taken by rescuing parties and all possible was done for the injured. The remains of Ashton were removed to his home. The Iron City was built here eleven years ago, was 135 feet long and twenty-five feet wide. Her original cost was about $16,000.

BILLY FISHER.

Remarkable Experiences on the Plains—Saw Horace Greely.

St. Louis Republican.

"There is the most noted man among us," said a prominent member of the Utah delegation, drawing a reporter's attention to a small, full faced man with a pair of square shoulders and a form as straight as an arrow. "That is Billy Fisher, of Oxford, and he has seen some tight places, where hair raising was as common as bees in a bottle."

Being introduced to Mr. Fisher, the reporter asked him for a little information about himself.

"Billy" showed his modesty by making an excuse to get away but the reporter held on, and finally Mr. Fisher said:

"In 1854 I left Kansas City whacking bulls across the plains. Not long after I reached Salt Lake City and engaged as mail agent between Salt Lake and California. The mail in those days left twice a month from each end of the line. Later I ran from Ruby Valley to Reese river, a distance of 185 miles. The mail was wrapped on a pack mule's back, and you can guess that we didn't make railroad time. I had not been running the mules very long when Miller, Russell & Co., got the stage contract, and the pack mule system was abolished. Then I kept a station at Gravely ford on Humboldt river, where a white man's face was not seen once in a month. We used to cook our meat on a pang-going-go-pang-goo-runy-kotob-enim-me-me-me-me."

"A what?"

Billy smiled as he explained to his hearer that he meant a stove, and had merely used the Indian name for it.

"My Indian title was Tosowich, which, when interpreted means White Knife, given to me on account of a very fine ivory handled knife which I carried in those days. There I met the famous chief Paraguinump, the fellow who, with his band of Piute warriors, massacred General Ormsby and a company of United States soldiers in the year 1857. After the pack mule was abandoned we had the stage line, which ran tri-weekly. People thought that no quicker means would ever be accomplished than the stage line. Horace Greeley passed over the line about that time, and I remember cooking his meat on the pang——."

"Never mind the stove," suggested the reporter, and Bill continued:

"Old Horace was loved very dearly by western people, and when he reached Piacerville, Col., the people tore his coat off him and and ripped it into shreds, keeping them as souvenirs. Mr. Greely was accompanied by Ben. Holladay, the greatest stage man the west has ever known. A few years later the stage coach was neglected as a mail carrier, and the pony express was established. I was the first man," said Mr. Fisher modestly, "selected to make a trip. It was from Ruby Valley, Nev., to Butte station, then called 'Robber's Roost.' I made my first ride, a distance of forty-five miles, with only two horses, in three hours and ten minutes. Six months later the 'Goshoot' Indians took to the war path, killing thirty of our riders, station keepers and water haulers. I was then making a ride, carrying the mail from Ruby to Salt Lake, a distance of three hundred miles. The Indians, jubilant over their victories, seemed to forget that I would be along, and camped for the night. They did not notice me until I had passed, then they mounted and took after me. It was a race for life, pony against pony. For five hours we kept going, they firing at me with rifles and arrows. Fortunately their aim was poor and my pony proved the best of the lot, and soon I left them far behind. I reached Salt Lake City in safety, mail and all, having made the trip in thirty-two hours, using seventeen horses. I didn't get a wink of sleep during that time. The horse that saved my life was called Bucking Billy. On him I made seventy-five miles in six hours. My escape was miraculous. When I dismounted my saddle was riddled with bullets, but my horse and myself were untouched.

"The pony express lasted eighteen months, then came the telegraph. At one time four of us were showed up in the mountains with no means of obtaining food, when Providence sent us a stray wolf, which Ralph Lozier killed, and we all partook of a hearty meal. Poor Ralph, he is dead now, having fell a victim to the knife of the Piutes, and his scalp adorns some wigwam to-day. One of the most touching scenes and acts of heroism of western life has never been made public. It happened in this way: John Applegate was stationed at Dry creek with several others, when they were attacked by Indians. All were killed except Applegate, who was wounded. Silas McCandles and Lafayette Ball, two former riders of the line, were camped a few miles away. They heard the firing and ran to the assistance of their fellowmen. They were horrified at the scene. Applegate was too badly wounded to move, and begged the boys to run for their lives. The Indians returned and outnumbered the gallant boys twenty to one. They refused to run, and John took his pistol and blew out his brains, so that the boys could save themselves. I was at Deep Creek at the time, 205 miles away. The news of the death of my friends reached me and I made the run in twenty-five hours, using three horses. Two companies of cavalry were dispatched under Lieutenants Weed and Perkins, and the marauding Indians were wiped out of existence."

Mr. Fisher is now 50 years of age, but can mount a broncho as actively as ever. He is at present engaged in merchandising and cattle-raising, and has a pretty home among the valleys and dales of Utah.

STORIES ABOUT OLD-TIME ACTORS.

The Greatest Hamlet that America Ever Saw—The Oldest Living Actor and His Cat—Daddy Rice and His Song "Jim Crow."

New York Sun.

"You see that big fellow just coming out of the stage entrance, don't you?" asked an old theater-goer the other night.

"Yes."

"Well, he has been on the stage about forty years and has a wife and twelve children living in Philadelyhia. I saw him play with William Macready just after the Astor Place riots here. I don't think he has been off the stage a season since. He is near 60, and is as fat and happy and spry as a kitten. That stomach he wears is worth $50 a week in any piece."

The old actor was enticed into a sequestered nook, where there was a round table and a waiter, and where he lit a cigar. Then he talked about modern acting and theatrical management as compared with the acting in the days when every theater had a stock company, and finally began to tell of the famous actors he had played with. He said:

"Speaking about Forrest, there was a finished actor for you. He was a man who could reveal all the hidden significance of a situation by a look or a gesture. He had the power to make even those who played with him forget that he was only an actor. But for the footlights I should have believed that I was taking part in a real tragedy, sometimes, when I was acting with him. He was not alone an actor. He was a finished gentleman. Ask him anything about art, literature, science, and he was at home. He was also a proficient swearer."

"I'll never forget," he resumed, "one night at the Walnut Street theatre when Forrest played "Hamlet" and I played the gravedigger. It was the opening night, and everything was all ready at the afternoon rehearsal excepting the skull and bones. Letinger, our property man, couldn't find them, though he ransacked the theater all over. He asked Forrest what he would do.

"'Do!' thundered Forrest. 'By———, find them or get others.'

"Poor Letinger understood that something must be done before evening. After another fruitless search he hurried over to Jefferson University Medical college, and up into the dissecting room. Jim, the janitor, was putting a lot of refuse flesh into the steaming pot.

"'Jim,' said Letinger, 'have you got a skull around here?'

"'Skull? Oh, yes, I've got one up there on the shelf, but it's a little green yet.'

"'Well, give it to me. It's for Forrest.'

"So the skull and bones were wrapped in a blanket and Letinger went back to the theater and dumped them into the grave. It was by that time 7 o'clock. Letinger had lost his supper. I don't think he felt like eating much, any way. He left the theater saying he was sick and wouldn't be there that night.

"It was lucky he wasn't there, I didn't know anything about it, you see, when I got into the grave and began picking. Right beside me sat Forrest, acting the greatest Hamlet the American stage ever saw, and beyond the footlights was the largest audience ever packed into the theater. When the time came I picked up the skull. Hum! Why, the meat was still hanging to the jaws in some places, and there were a few straggling hairs sticking to the crown. I thought I should have to get down in the grave to hide my face as I said:

"'This same skull, sir, was Yorick's skull, the king's jesler.'

"'This?' said Forrest, as he took it.

"'E'en that,' I said rather faintly."

"Did Forrest turn up his nose?"

"Not a bit. Not a muscle betrayed his feelings. I expected him to say 'poor Yorick,' and then swear like a trooper. I think I never heard words better on the stage than when he went on:

"'Let me see. 'Alas, poor Yorick! I knew him, Horatio; a fellow of infinite jest, of most excellent fancy. He hath borne me on his back a thousand times; and now, how abhorred in my imagination it is! (There was a world of abhorrence in his tone.) My gorge rises at it (and so did mine.) Here hung those lips that I have kissed I know not how oft. Where be your gibes now? your gambols? your songs? your flashes of merriment that were wont to set the table in a roar? Prythee, Horatio, tell me one thing.'

"'What's that, my lord?'

"'Dost thou think Alexander looked o' this fashion i' the earth?'

"'E'en so.'

"'And smelt so? pah!'

"You ought to have heard Forrest say that. It wasn't acted; it was real. When he got behind the scene he whipped out a handkerchief and—hum! If poor Letinger had been there I believe the theater would have had another green skull, sure.

"While there was very little fooling about Forrest, yet he was an easy man to get along with. He would do anybody a good turn.

"No manager could refuse him anything. I remember one time when Forrest was playing at the Walnut Street theater. It was just before the war, when he began to get a little gouty and wanted some one to travel with him to rehearse for him when felt indisposed, and in short to be a sort of a sub for him. One morning I saw Mrs. Garrisons in the theater with a very sober face.

"'What's the matter, aunty?' I said.

"'Forrest wants Adams to go with him,' she said. 'Now, I can't spare Adams and I can't refuse Forrest. What shall I do?'

"'Perhaps he will take McCullough?'

"McCullough was then playing anything in the company. He could be spared well enough. We didn't see that he had the making of a tragedian in him. Forrest took him, and did a great deal to make him a great actor, poor fellow, now dying in Bloomingdale asylum.

"There was John R. Scott, a New York actor. If it hadn't been for his habits he would have knocked Forrest higher than a kite. He was some like the elder Booth in appearance. Uncle John, we used to call him. I never knew what became of him. William Rufus Blake was another old lusher. He got so he could never be depended on. He weighed about 400 pounds, and acted high comedy parts to perfection. He died in Boston. Then there was Charles Bass, who was a popular star at one time. But he always used to get staggering drunk about the time the performance closed. It was a great mystery, I remember, because nobody ever saw him drink and no liquor was allowed in the theater. But one night in one of the theaters here the mystery was solved. He had a bottle in his dressing room labelel 'cough syrup.' He was always gargling his throat with the syrup between the acts. The manager gargled his throat on sly, one night, and found the syrup to be a rare old brand of whisky. Bass lived to be quite an old man, though."

"Who are the oldest actors?" we asked.

"Well, there is Walter Lee, who used to be a versatile actor about fifty years ago. He left the stage some time before the war and became some kind of a judge in California. He's alive yet, I hear. Tom Haddaway was a comedian of the old times, and he is a farmer now out on Long Island somewhere. But I guess the man who antedates them all is Ned Connor. He is over 80 years old, and lives in Patterson, N. J. Everybody knew him here forty years ago. He was a theatre manager for a long time. He was a tall, pedantic cuss, and had one hobby of which he was never cured, and that was a fondness for addressing an audience. At the Arch street theatre, Philadelphia, Connor had a Maltese cat that was always getting under foot. One day I got mad at her, and grabbing her by the neck, I plunged her into what I supposed was a pail of water. Shortly afterward someone said:

"'Sam, something is the matter with that cat.'

"There on the floor stood that cat as motionless as a 'possum. I walked around her and she kept her big, glaring eyes on me all she could, but didn't move an atom of her neck. She was positively motionless, even to the end of her tail. I asked one of the stage hands what was in that pail and he told me it was size which he had been putting on the scenes. It had stiffened on her, you know. Connor offered $20 reward for the perpetrator of the outrage, but nobody ever gave me away.

"Connor took the Green street theater at Albany one season, and I recollect that one of the attractions which came along was M. Behing, the Belgian giant. He was a tremendous big fellow. When he got into a hack both doors had to be opened. He always had to go clear through the hack and half way out before he could get in. Behing played only in pantomime. He was a clever actor, and the people were anxious to hear him speak. So the last night of the engagement Connor advertised in big letters that M. Behing would appear in one of his most popular spoken parts. The theater was crowded. The first act passed and Behing lumbered on and off the stage, but didn't open his chops. The second passed, and the third. Not a syllable from Behing. The audience was getting impatient. Just at the close of the piece the old duke sat at a table drinking from a goblet. On strode Behing. He struck a fine attitude and sung out: 'Sthopt, id's bison!' Then the curtain fell.

"But the ne plus ultra of comedians in those days," continued the other actor, "was William E. Burton. In the latter years of his life I know he was always at work on an illustrated edition of Shakspeare. I saw him working at it many a time, and he was extremely careful of the manuscript, keeping it locked up where no one could find it. He must have had it nearly finished, when he died, but no one knows what became of it.

"'T. D. Rice, or 'Daddy Rice,' was another clever comedian. The 'Virginia Mummy' was his piece. He also played 'Bone Squash' and a burlesque on 'Othello.' At one time Daddy Rice was known all over the world through the song 'Jim Crow.' He sang it in Europe to crowned heads, and took them crazy. They loaded him with gifts. Whenever he appeared here he would be called to sing the song eight or ten times of an evening."

At this point the old comedian discovered that his cigar had gone out. He lit another, and then went on talking about the old actors who were dead, buried, and forgotten by most people years ago.

STILL IN THE FIELD.

THE PROHIBITIONISTS HEARD FROM

The Executive Committee Holds a Meeting—What the Advocates Claim—A Mean Joke on Governor Ross—Other Political Notes from Over the Wires.

Special Telegram to The Star.

LAWRENCE, Kas., Dec. 2.—The state central committee of the Prohibition party held a meeting in this city yesterday afternoon and evening. Ex-Governor St. John was present and spoke. He claims that the results of the recent elections in Ohio and New York, as well as those in the south, show that the temperance people are in favor of a third party. A series of resolutions denouncing the Republican party leaders were passed and especially the attempts that are being made to close the saloons in the Missouri river towns, claiming that it is only done for effect and that the officers and party leaders are not in favor of prohibition. At the close of the meeting a subscription paper was passed and $400 subscribed for the purpose of at once inaugurating a vigorous campaign for 1886. The plan as proposed is to send speakers and lecturers to every town in the state. The leaders have mainly suggestions to make in regard to the present prohibitory law and will not ask for a number of changes at the present state legislature. They also announce that next fall they will place a full state and congressional ticket in the field. Among the prominent candidates for congress who are mentioned from this (the Second) district is Hon. Charles Branscome, formerly United States consul at Manchester, England. The prohibition leaders boast that they have the balance of power in Kansas and say they will give the state to the Democrats if they can't control it themselves. Ex-Governor St. John announces that he will take part in person in next campaign in this state.

An Attempted Joke.

Special Telegram to The Star.

RATON, N. M., Dec. 2.—Last night some waggish, but generally ill disposed persons to the success and government of the Democracy, circulated a telegram purporting to be the removal of Governor Ross on account of the land troubles. This is evidently a trick by land manipulators, and inaugurated for the purpose of demonstrating the strength of the anti-land grab league, the latter having for some time expressed a distrust in Governor Ross's actions. Many are exulting and turning a day of solemnity into one of great satisfaction, whilst the tricksters are holding orgies in private rooms, and laughing at the hoax played upon the unsuspecting. Some Democrats as well as Republicans are connected with the scheme, and all are known to belong to what is known as the "land ring" of New Mexico. By good reform Democrats, it is considered a very "thin" piece of business, and may result in trouble to some one.

A NAUGHUY PROFESSOR.

His Actions With a Woman Cause the Death of His Wife.

SIOUX FALLS, Dec. 2.—A very sad and sensational death occurred in this city last night, the victim being Mrs. Georgia Perry, preceptress and wife of Professor F. W. Perry, principal and professor of Greek and Latin of the Sioux Falls university. The professor and his wife occupied rooms at the college and for some time past have entertained Mrs. Dr. Spofford, of Flandreau, who on Saturday night occupied a room directly opposite that of Professor and Mrs. Perry's. Late in the night Mrs. Perry awoke and found her husband absent from their bed. She went to the room of their visitor. Finding her husband there she fell in a spasm. Her screams soon brought the occupants of the other rooms in the building to the scene. The professor afterward emerged from Mrs. Spofford's room in partial undress. Mrs. Perry remained in an hysterical condition until last evening, when she sick. The professor and his wife came to Dakota in the spring of 1884, from Raleigh, N. C., where they were connected with a college, first locating in Flandrean, where they proposed to found a college. In the fall of 1884 the project was abandoned and they came to Sioux Falls, and putting about $4,000 into the university here, upon the death of Professor Stone, were given positions at the head of the institution. From North Carolina with Professor Perry came one Dr. Spofford and wife, and located at Flandreau. The tongue of scandal has been rife, and the assertion often made that the weekly visits of the professor to Flandreau were not altogether on account of his music class. The board of directors was in session et the time of Mrs. Perry's death, and at once adjourned until after the funeral, when it is expected some decisive action will be taken and the erring professor most forcibly bounced.

Telpherage.

New York Sun.

Telpherage is a new and cheap method of transportation which was successfully tried in England last month, and is defined as the transportation of goods and passengers by means of electricity without engineer, brakeman or train attendants.

It was the conception of the late Professor Fleeming Jenkin, and has been perfected with the assistance of other men of science and practical electricians, until at last a telpherage company has been formed, and an experimental line, about a mile long, constructed in Surrey, England. The purpose of this particular telpher line is to carry dry clay from clay pits to a railroad.

A continuous stream of light trains is propelled by electricity along an elevated rod. A double set of steel rods, three-quarters of an inch in diameter and eight feet apart, is supported on wooden posts standing about eighteen feet above the ground, and an electric locomotive, absolutely controlled from the engine house, draws skeps or buckets, hanging by traveling wheels from the steel line. Each of these buckets weighs 101 pounds and carries 250 to 300 pounds of clay, but because of their even distribution and somewhat wide separation the strain on the steel line is small, although the total weight of the train and clay is about two tons. The rate of speed is four or five miles an hour, for which only two electric horsepower is necessary. The electro-motive force is automatically kept the same, what ever the number of trains running, so that the starting or stopping of one telpher train in no way affects the speed of the remainder. The dynamo can be driven by either steam or water power.

The experience in the construction of this line shows that a similar line could now be put up at a short notice for a total cost of only $6,000, including engine, dynamo, permanent way, and five trains, with locomotives, to carry 100 tons daily, the working expenses, all told being less than 6 cents per ton per mile upon the material carried. A double line ten miles long, worked heavily would carry material at 4 cents per ton per mile.

Nobody expects that telpherage will come into serious competition with the large railways. Its function is to do cheaply the work of horses and carts and light horse railroads. It can be easily put up and carried over uneven ground or across streams, high fences and deep ditches, and a telpher line will not interfere with agriculture, since it runs above fields and pastures. It is, moreover, in itself a source of power which can be simultaneously tapped at any desired points and made to assist in the work of the farmer. For instance, on the occasion of the experiment, a turnip cutter was put into operation by means of a motor connected with the line.

As Nature, the scientific authority from which we obtain these facts, remarks, "the slight flash seen when Lady Hampden lifted the little box on the table in front of the engine house marked the beginning of a new departure in electro-technology." For many purposes telpherage seems likely to prove of great value. A telpher line, rapidly and cheaply constructed, can be run at a small cost where an ordinary railway would seriously disturb the operations of agriculture.

A Fine Crop of Liars.

"It was Saturday night," said a gentleman interviewed by a St. Louis Post-Dispatch reporter, "and I was about to turn into the hotel—I was stopping in the town of Hutchinson, Kan.,—when I looked down the street and saw the sign "saloon." Just to see how they worked things I went down to the saloon and asked for a drink of liquor. 'Don't sell it,' said the bartender. 'Give you some ginger ale. 'All right,' said I, 'let's have the ginger.' He set out some ginger ale and I drank it. It was all right, much to my surprise, for I thought ginger ale was but a synonym for whisky. As I turned to go the bartender said, 'You can get what you want in the drug store next door.' I went into the drug store and asked for some whisky. 'How much do you want—a pint?' inquired the proprietor. 'Yes, a pint will do,' said I, thinking, as he had given me the hint, that that was the proper amount to buy. Well, he turned to a book and began to fill out a blank. Then he asked me what I wanted it for. I didn't answer, and he said inquiringly 'general debility,' and I said yes. Then he tore off the blank, putting it before me for signing, and after I had signed it, put it on a hook. In a minute I had a pint of whisky, and he had my money. Before I left I asked him for one of the blanks to be filled on such occasions, and he gave me it, and here it is. Now you can see what a liar a man has to make of himself to get a drink. I signed the blank without looking at the contents, but I have thought since that while the sale of liquors may have been restricted in Kansas by prohibition laws, the operation of the same must inevitably result in the production of a crop of liars superior to that of any half-dozen states in the country."

THE HEAVIEST DAY'S WORK.

Eighty-three Postmasters Removed and 163 Appointed—Other Washington News.

Special Telegram to The Star.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The first assistant postmaster-general removed two fourth-class Democratic postmasters, 83 Republicans—three only of the latter for cause—and appointed 163 Democrats, the heaviest day on record. Thirteen representatives and six senators arrived to-day. There are now here fifty-three representatives and thirty-one senators. Congressman Warner, Clardy, Burns and Hutton came in this morning.

How the Committees Will Stand.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The impression is growing here among those who have talked with Speaker Carlisle that there will be no radical changes in committee chairmanships in the house, but a number of promotions will be made where former chairmen have failed o re-election. It is thought in most cases the next on the list will be moved up according to the last roster of the house. If the speaker carries out his plan—chairmen of the more important committees elected and prospective will be as follows: Elections, chairman, Turner, of Georgia, re-elected; ways and means, chairman, Morrison, of Illinois, re-elected; appropriation, chairman, Randall, of Pennsylvania, re-elected; judiciary, chairman, Tucker, of Virginia, re-elected; barking and currency, Ermentrout, of Pennsylvania, second on the list, Chairman Aylett H. Buckner, of Missouri, having been defeated; rivers and harbors, Chairman, Willis, of Kentucky, re-elected; foreign affairs, Chairman, Curtin, of Pennsylvania, re-elected; postoffices and post roads, Reese, of Georgia, second on the list, Vice-Chairman Money, defeated; manufacturers, Hon. Chas. L. Mitchell, of Connecticut, next in eligibility, Chairman Bagley having been defeated; Pacific railroads, Throkmorton, of Texas, next in order to Chairman Cassady, defeated; labor, O'Neill, of Missouri, vice Chairman Hopkins, defeated; patents, Singleton, of Mississippi, vice Chairman Vance, defeated; pensions, Tillman, of South Carolina, vice Chairman Hewitt, defeated.

Protest Against Smuggling.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Governor Zulick, of Arizona, has dddressed the following communication to the secretary of the interior: "I deem it my duty, through you, to call the attention of the treasury department to the evil of smuggling carried on between Arizona and the state of Sonora, Mexico. The counties of Prina and Cochise have a border of several hundred miles along the Mexican frontier, over which smugglers cross on the unfrequented trails, bringing into this territory the products of Mexico without let or hindrance. There are within Arizona 20,000 inhabitants of Mexican origin, the national drink of whom is mescal, a liquor distilled from the cactus plant, thousands ef gallons of which are annually consumed by them, all of which is manufactured in Mexico. Hardly a gallon pays duty. Hundreds of thousands of Mexican cigars and quantities of tabacco, to say nothing of beef cattle horses, etc., are also smuggled in."

The governor concludes by recommending the appointment of four United States inspectors, to watch importation from Mexico into the United States of Mexican products.

A Caucus.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—A caucus of Republican members of the house will be held Saturday at 3 p. m. for the nomination of a candidate for speaker and other officers of the house, and such business as may be prudential.

Easy Times in Parliament.

London Truth.

Mr. Speaker has expressed his surprise that human beings can do the work of members of parliament. Their nerves, he says, are shattered and their health is impaired. This is true of a speaker of the house of commons, and perhaps its leader, although it must be admitted that Mr. Gladstone is an instance of the contrary, and I have often thought that there ought to be a deputy speaker, who would replace the speaker after he has been in the chair four or five hours. The average member of parliament, however, has a very easy time of it. He drops down to the house about 5 o'clock and listens to "questions." Then he goes away unless there is likely to be a division before dinner, in which case he hangs about in and out of the house. At 8 o'clock the house is empty; everyone is dining. This goes on until about 10:30, when it commences to fill. The member of parliament, however, has learned when a division is expected, and if it pleases him he does not put in an appearance until that hour. A more easy life than that of the average member of parliament does not exist.

The Masher Smashed.

The enthusiastic masher who is under the impression that every actress on the stage is ready at a moment's notice to fall in love with him, occasionally meets with more than his match and finds out his mistake under circumstances somewhat humiliating to his self esteem. There is a certain clever young lady, a shining light of a very popular theater in London upon whose boards the legitimate drama has never made its appearance. The lady is much admired and very unapproachable. Her talents and her beauty completely conquered the heart of one of the somewhat foolish young men who habitually frequent such places of entertainment, and he determined to make his passion known after the fashion of his tribe and kind, by sending to the young lady, whose acquaintance he had not, a particularly costly gift of jewelry, accompanied by the usual sort of letter. What was his disgust on receiving by return of post a little note in the third person, in which the young lady thanked him for his gift, "which she accepted in the spirit in which it was meant—as a token of admiration for her dramatic talent."

The Retort Corteous.

Talking about London assizes, says a wrter in London Life, one of the oldest barristers on the northern circuit told me a good story, a day or two ago, of a little passage of arms between Baron C—— and a leading "silk" in the course of a trial which took place at Manchester some fifteen yesrs ago. Neither the baron nor the silk were men of much education or refinement. On the conclusion of the latter's opening the baron took occasion to say that he did not think the action would lay. The aduocate thought he saw a chance of scoring, and said he, "I presume your lordship means lie. Hens lay." The baron blew his nose, but said nothing. Toward the close of the day's proceedings, howevr, counsel ventured to inquire whether his lordship would "set her to-morrow?" "I suppose," was the triumphant retort, "you mean sit. Hens set, you know!"

Famous Berkeley Square.

Whitehall Review.

Lord Strathnairn's well known residence, No. 52 Berkeley square, situated, as his many friends had reason to know, at the corner of Charles street, will come to the hammer next month, in company with Lady Katherine Bannerman's late house, No. 37 Upper Brook street. In this latter died, at the close of the last century, Mr. William Gerard Hamilton, whose name had passed into history as "Single Speech" Hamilton. Apropos of Berkeley square, it may be noted that Lord Strathnairn is not the only celebrity who has died while residing in the square. Horace Walpole died at No. 11 in 1797, and at No. 45 the great Lord Clive put an end to himself with a razor.

"Why can't I call on heaven?"

"Cause yew ain't so well known in heaven as I be,"

"I am very glad to hear it," replied the widow.

THE DANGEROUS BARBER.

An Institution that is Evidently Allied With the Doctor.

Detroit Free Press.

"How many prescriptions for sore throats do you suppose I've written in the lask week?" asked a Detroit doctor yesterday.

"Oh, perhaps a dozen."

"Nearly thirty, sir. And what do you think the cause in every case was?"

"Change of weather, of course."

"Change of nothing! There were two cases where the patients slept with open windows and got cold, but in all the rest the ailment could be traced directly to the barber."

"What did the barber do?"

"Cut their hair. I tell you the average barber is a more dangerous foe to humanity than cholera and small-pox. While they can be guarded against or stamped out, he lives on, year after year."

"Is it dangerous to get the hair cut?"

"Outside of the three summer months it is. Take a raw day like this and forty-nine out of every fifty men who get into a barber's chair to have their hair even trimmed will have a cold or sore throat before to-morrow night. I would rather take a walk for two hours without my overcoat than to have two ounces of hair snipped off my head."

"But if people want their hair cut how is the barber to blame?"

"He is all to blame. No one should have his hair cut more than twice a year—May and September—and it should be done only on a warm day. Have your hair cut to-day, and go to a barber shop three days hence, and the barber will observe:

"'Have your hair cut?'

"'No.'

"'But you'd better; getting pretty long, sir.'

"'Who, I had it cut only a few days ago.'

"'Yes, sir, but he made a botch job of it. Wants to be trimmed very bad.'

"Take it in the case of young men and boys," continued the doctor. "A word from the barber is sufficient to make them submit to a hair cut or shampoo. Those who didn't hear from the hair cutting may certainly expect to from the shampoo. You walk out of the shop into the cold air, and within twenty-four hours you can look for neuralgia, toothache, earache, or sore throat.

"Would you advise a law on the subject?"

"We couldn't make a law to cover the case. What I'd advise is for the people to investigate the matter and exercise judgment and common sense. It is just as bad to rob your head as your feet. You wouldn't dare take your socks off on a day like this, and yet the barbers of Detroit will cut the hair from 500 men and boys. The risk is even greater than in pulling off an undershirt. People should understand this. I have seen a dozen cases of pneumonia brought on by hair cutting on a cold day. It is responsible for much of the asthma, and perhaps for some of the consumption."

"How about shaving, doctor?"

"It is a dangerous habit. You can trace nearly every case of toothache and facial neuralgia in a man to the habit of shaving. If all men protected their throats by chin whiskers, and the nerves of the face by a liberal growth, you wouldn't hear of half the present ailments. When I was a boy I never heard of a case of neuralgia in the facial nerves. In these days it is as common as cases of the ague. Men used to wear beards. The fashion of to-day is meant to encourage ailments. Shaving opens the pores of the face and invites neuralgia to step in and twitch the nerves."

"Well, is that all to day?"

"All but one thing. When a barber invites you to have your hair cut on a raw November day please rise up and punch his head—for me."

But Little Genuine Brandy Now Made in France.

St. James Gazette.

It appears from a report just furnished to the Academy of Science by M. Girard, the chief of the Paris municipal laboratory, that the production of genuine brandy had almost ceased in France. During the decade 1840-1850, the quantity of alcohol annually distilled in the country averaged some twenty-five million gallons, seven-eighths of which was obtained from wine. In 1883, though the quantity of spirits manufactured had more than doubled, not quite a half million gallons were the distilled juice of the grape. Most of the alcohol now produced is made from grain; but a certain proportion of it is obtained from the distillation of cider and perry; and even beet root, molasses and potatoes are made to furnish a spirit, though of a very inferior kind. M. Girard says that the grain spirit would be fairly wholesome if it were sufficiently rectified; but this is, it appears, never the case. As for the other forms of alcohol enumerated, they are one and all charged with poisonous elements of the most deadly character—acids, ethers, and essential oils—and M. Girard attributes the increase of insanity in certain of the departments mainly to the growing consumption of these vile substitutes for the comparatively harmless French brandy of the olden times.

THE meetings in the interest of the Provident association Sunday night should be attended by every Kansas Cityan who can spare a cent for those who are less prosperous. This association has done good work in relieving the needy and should be given all possible support by the public.

A GENTLEMAN suggests that it would probably be wiser to convey to Mr. CORRIGAN the public square rather than give him the use of the streets of the city for bobtail mule cars for the next thirty years. Mr. CORRIGAN might be able to borrow what money he needs by executing a mortgage on the public square.

THE value of the mule car franchises which Mr. CORRIGAN asks may now be fairly estimated, since he regards them as security for a half million dollars or more. If a mortgage on these extended franchises for a half million dollars can be negotiated, it would seem to be reasonable to estimate the franchises as really worth one million dollars.

THE New York Tribune understands that Mr. TILDEN is busy preparing the president's annual message. Owing partly to the machinations of the Tribune Mr. TILDEN'S message has been delayed some eight years but the Tribune may rest assured that if Mr. TILDEN writes the message it will be as able a state document as ever emanated from the White House.

"THE Parnellite vote in Dublin was immense, being 23,772 against a conservative vote of 4,476, and a liberal vote of 3,170."

The above dispatch tells a story which will astonish the whole world, no doubt, as well as the leaders of the Liberal party. It is natural, perhaps, that in an Irish city an Irishman of CHAS. S. PARNELL'S prominence should carry an election over all competitors, but one would have looked at the tail end of the returns for the Tories—not the Liberals. With GLADSTONE as a leader it was to be expected the Liberal party would have come out second at least. But the fact stares straight out from the paper, in cold figures that it didn't. What is the cause? is the question, and the answer is the Irish people have come to look upon the Liberal party as a veritable lot of "Pecksniffs." Then the tarnishing of British arms in the Soudan and the back down before Russia last spring have tended to lessen the respect of the Irish as well as the English people for the party then in power. Hence the result.

THE funeral is over, the bells have ceased tolling and all that is mortal of THOMAS A. HENDRICKS lies in the tomb and awaits the end of all things earthly, when the great day of reckoning which humanity looks forward to, shall come and all shall be judged according to the merits or demerits of their actions while in life. The ceremony consigning the dead to the great mother of us all, Earth, was very solemn and impressive and served to remind all that one of the leaders of the nation had gone to rest. While the memory of General GRANT and GARFIELD and other illustrious dead is still fresh in the minds of the people the death of one so prominent as the vice-president of the United States can only add a tinge of sadness to the feelings of the nation. For one thing, however, the people have reason to be thankful, and that is that the death resulted from natural causes, and that the nation has not again to bear the disgrace of a political assassination. It is bad enough to lose one of the heads of the government from any cause, but the misfortune is only attended with odium when the death results from violence.

THE CORRIGAN ORDINANCE.

The Times, in an editorial article this morning, complains that the CORRIGAN cable road and horse railroad extension ordinance is in danger of defeat because certain "chronic objectors" and "demagogues" and other "narrow-minded citizens" are disinclined to favor the passage of the ordinance just as it came from the hands of Mr. CORRIGAN'S attorney. The Times evidently thinks that Mr. CORRIGAN should have everything his own way, and on just such terms as he is willing to "concede," and is impatient because its views are not accepted by the people without discussion or objection.

The Times says Mr. CORRIGAN'S ordinance "should stand or fall on its own merits." That is exactly what the "objectors" demand. They do not insist, as they might very justly, that Mr. CORRIGAN is entitled to neither consideration nor comfort from this city because of his disregard hitherto of his agreements and contracts with the city, but will consent that he be treated just as any other citizen would be under like circumstances. There are four cable road propositions before the council, two of which Mr. CORRIGAN is interested in and two in which he has no interest. Those who are opposing the passage of Mr. CORRIGAN'S ordinance, to a man, so far as we have ever heard, simply demand that franchises for these four cable roads shall each be included in a separate ordinance and that the conditions and reservations contained in any one of the ordinances shall be incorporated into all. No privilege or right which is conceded to the Fifteenth street or Grand avenue lines do they wish to deprive Mr. CORRIGAN of and neither do they want anything demanded or exacted from Mr. CORRIGAN either in his Fifth or Twelfth street ordinances, but what should be demanded of the Fifteenth and Grand avenue companies.

Mr. CORRIGAN is asking much more than the other companies are. He wants the city to give him a bonus in the shape of extensions of his horse car lines simply that he may mortgage them. He does not ask these extensions on the petition of property owners, but in defiance of their protest and opposition. He demands that grades shall not be changed on any of the streets on which his cable roads are to be operated. He demands that West Twelfth street be either surrendered to him or that if the city desires to use any portion of his proposed viaduct it can do so provided it will pay two-thirds of the cost of its construction and give him the exclusive right of way over the center and most valuable portion of it. He asks that the Bluff street wagon bridge over the railroad tracks be given him for his cable road, the effect of which would be to drive from it all wagon travel. He asks all these things and much more, because he "concedes" to the public cable roads on two streets where he is now running mule cars, which would not be tolerated in any other city in the country of ten thousand inhabitants.

No, there is no disposition on the part of any citizen of Kansas City to treat Mr. CORRIGAN unfairly. But there is a disposition to give him no more than is or would be given any other citizen under like circumstances. The four ordinances should be drawn by the city counsellor and should be as nearly as possible alike in all respects.

THE CITY.

The City to be Redistricted Into Ten Wards.

The Council Orders the Ordinance Published.

A Successful Meeting of Property Owners.

Prisoners Indicted --- Other City News of To-day.

Property Oweners' Meeting.

A meeting of the property owners who are opposed to renewal of the unexpired street railway franchises, was held at the Coates house last night. There were present the following:

Messrs. K. Coates, E. H. Webster, J. H. Oglebay, F. H. Kinney, J. M. Patterson, G. W. Jones, S. M. Ford, W. J. Ferry, A. R. Meyer, H. J. Latshaw, P. H. Tiernan, J. M. Nave, T. B. Bullene, A. J. Mead, S. B. Armour, C. F. Morse, J. W. German, H. N. White, C. E. Corcoran, J. I. Reynolds, J. A. Suydam, D. P. Thomson, Rev. Butler and Dr. Porter.

The meeting was held with closed doors but the result is shown in the following resolutions which were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we are opposed to the renewal of any franchise for street railroads upon the streets of this city until they have expired or are about to expire.

Resolved, That we believe it to be the duty of the members of the city council to be governed by a liberal policy in granting franchises for new and improved transit facilities for street travel, where the majority of the property holders on such streets have petitioned for such franchises.

Resolved, That we believe it is now the proper time to establish the principle of an equitable tax upon the gross receipts of all such franchises hereafter granted, which tax shall be devoted to the purchase and maintenance of public parks and charitable institutions.

Resolved, That in our judgment it is unwise and against the interest of the whole city to grant any franchise upon West Twelfth street until the grade of said street is established by ordinance to a practicable grade such as to make it a means of easy transit between the lower and upper parts of the city over said street, which should also include the building of a viaduct, so built as to accommodate a street railroad and at the same time establish the proportionate cost such street railroad should pay for said viaduct.

Judge C. L. Dobson, Judge G. W. McCrary, Messrs. F. B. Bullene, S. B. Armour, J. M. Patterson, P. H. Tiernon, Kersey Coates and C. E. Corcoran were appointed a committee to act in conjunction with a committee which was appointed at a recent meeting of the Second ward Taxpayers' Union. The committee will familiarize itself with every feature of the cable road franchises, and will endeavor to convince members of the council that the spirit of the resolutions adopted last night ought to be carried out. There were no set speeches at the meeting, but the whole question of franchises was thoroughly discussed, and the sentiment of all present was plainly outlined in the resolutions.

LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN.

Kansas City Will Soon Have the Greatest Panorama in the World—A Realistic Battle Scene.

Mr. H. C. Mitchell, who is interested in bringing to this city a panorama of the battle of Lookout mountain and Missionary ridge, stated to a STAR reporter to-day that he was confident he would be able within the next two or three days to secure a large amount of stock in addition to that already taken. A number of leading citizens have subscribed liberally, and others who have carefully investigated the matter have announced a willingness to invest in the enterprise. St. Paul, Minneapolis and other cities of the north and west will soon be supplied with panoramas of the great battle fields of the rebellion, and Kansas City, too, will fall into line.

These panoramas have, it is said, proved great investments without a single exception, and this city, it is believed, offers a magnificent field for an investment of the kind. Mr. Mitchell said he was certain it would pay 5 per cent per month from the start.

The painting is now in the hands of German artists and it will be several months yet before the huge canvas is ready to ship to this country. Meanwhile the work of grading at Eighth and Broadway, where the building is to be located, is progressing and in a few weeks work will be begun upon the foundation. The building will cost, completed, about $50,000. The painting itself is being executed by the best artists in Europe and is said to be the finest work of the kind in the world. The "Battle Above the Clouds," is famous the world over and the panorama of it will be startlingly realistic. All the officers who took part in the battle are faithfully portrayed just as they appeared while the smoke of the battle was still mingling with the cloud veil which hung about the mountain top.

WORK OF THE GRAND JURY.

A Number of Indictments Returned—Prisoners Arraigned.

The grand jury to-day returned true bills of indictment against the following:

Frank Martin, assault on Ted Moore Sept. 15.

Henry Mickey, assault with intent to kill; he assaulted Wm. Robinson Sept. 26.

Jessie Carry, grand larceny from the store of Cyrus Near July 1.

John Winterhammer, larceny from a Penn street residence.

Chas. Martin and Wm. Hannon, burglary in the second degree; they broke into Edelbert Kennedy's store Oct. 25; both pleaded guilty and were sentenced to six months each in the county jail.

John Murphy, robbery in the first degree; John Robinson, grand larceny; A. J. Hughes, forgery in the third degree; Thomas Hodge, assault with intent to kill; Henry Sexton, assault with intent to kill.

All those against whom indictments were returned were arraigned before Judge White, and all save two pleaded not guilty.

THE NEW RAILROAD.

Engineer Knight's Work on the Nebraska Northwestern Almost Completed.

Mr. D. Bontecou, of the firm of Knight & Bontecou, received a letter from his absent partner to-day informing him that the Kansas City, Nebraska & Northwestern surveying corps had completed its hundredth mile. Mr. Knight's address during the next day or two will be Seneca, Nemaha county, Kas. He has completed about two-thirds of the survey and has found the route all that could be desired. He will reach Beatrice, Neb., the terminus of the road, in a few days, and upon his return will report favorably on the route. A locating or definite survey will then be made and estimates on the cost of construction obtained. The road is simply "being built" as fast as it is customary to build railroads. Upon Mr. Knight's return a meeting will be called in Board of Trade hall to arrange definitely the steps which follow the locating survey. The benefits Kansas City will derive from this road are just beginning to be appreciated. The importance of the new line was briefly and concisely described at the last meeting held for its consideration, when Colonel Coates said: "It is the most important railroad for Kansas City unbuilt." The fact that this conviction became general among business men gives assurance that the road will be constructed at once.

SPECIAL SESSION.

The Redistricting Ordinance Ordered Published——The Viaduct Contract Confirmed.

The meeting of the council was peculiarly interesting last night, and matters of considerable importance were attended to. The contract with Kansas City Bridge and Iron company for building the Wyoming street viaduct was confirmed, after much opposition, and it will be known in the future as the Jewett viaduct. Contracts for the paving of Walnut street from Fifth to Twelfth streets, and Ninth street, from Forest to Lydia avenue, were confirmed. In connection with the last contracts considerable discussion arose over what has been done in the recent Fifth street paving. It was agreed that City Engineer Whitney would be expected to be more than watchful and see that all was attended to per contract.

The report from the committee on redistricting the city into ten wards, was received and the ordinance passed to a second reading by an almost unanimous vote. Some little discussion arose over the question of publishing the ordinance and it was finally agreed to have it published in several of the city papers.

The Hannibal & St. Joe railroad asked permission to build an ice house, a wood structure, but the request was referred to the committee appointed some time ago to inquire into the tearing down of the bridge by the company.

DIAMONDS MISSING.

Burglars Successfully Raid an Independence Jewelry Store.

Independence has been pretty thoroughly worked by burglars during the past two or three months, and several extensive robberies have been committed. Last night the jewelry store of John Smith was entered by burglars, who stole several valuable sets of diamonds, and escaped with their plunder. They are evidently experts in the jewelry business, for they carefully selected the genuine diamonds from the paste, and cast aside plated ware but reserved the solid gold and silver articles. After the burglars had made the best selection possible they carried the cheap jewelry away from the store and threw it in an adjoining yard, where it was found this morning.

The value of the articles taken is not known as Mr. Jones is unable as yet to tell exactly what sets were taken. It is believed, however, that the burglars secured about $2,000 worth of jewelry, although the amount may be even greater.

There is no clue as to who perpetrated the robbery, but if they attempt to pawn it or dispose of it in any way in this city they will probably be caught, as all the pawn shops have been visited by detectives, who left with the proprietors a description of the missing articles.

The burglars entered the store through a rear door, and it is believed that the robbery was committed quite early in the evening.

Important Business on Hand.

A very business-like individual strutted about the platform at the union depot last night, and the fact that he frequently consulted his watch led the directors to believe that he had very important business on hand. Finally he caught sight of the gorgeous gold star which glitters upon the breast of Depot Master Rodgers. Then he swooped down upon the depot master and asked what time a certain west bound train would leave.

"At 6:30 o'clock," replied Rodgers.

The man shrugged his shoulders, pulled out his watch and coolly proceeded to torture his victim by the following question: "Couldn't you manage to have the train start a little earlier? I have very important business on hand and can't afford to wait until 6:30 o'clock."

Rodgers was floored, but soon recovered sufficiently to direct the stranger to a passenger agent.

VIEWS ON THE RULES.

WHAT VARIOUS MEMBERS THINK.

The Proposed Change Generally Disapproved Missouri Patriots at the National Capital—The President's Reception—Garland's Call—Other Late News Notes.

Special Telegram to The Star.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Thomas Holliday, Fredericktown, Mo.; Martin L. Clardy, of Missouri; J. N. Burnes, St. John; Mo., and J. K. Rickey, of Fulton, Mo., registered at the Willards this morning and Wm. Warner, of Kansas City, at the Ebbitt. After breakfast most of these gentlemen wandered up to the capitol. Mr. Burnes retired to his room to rest and did not put in an appearance until the hour for lunch. The correspondent who caught him in the hotel rotunda at that hour did not succeed in getting much out of him. He preferred leaving the senatorial contest in Missouri undiscussed. On the proposed distribution of appropriation bills he expressed an adverse opinion. "To destroy the unity of the system of getting up these appropriation bills would lead to great extravagance, in my opinion," said he. "It would give a broader field to those people who have jobs to put through congress. It is probable that Mr. Randall will be placed at the head of the appropriations committee, and Mr. Randall is known to be opposed to jobs and schemes of all kinds."

Representative Culberson of Texas, a member of ten years' standing, arrived this morning. To your correspondent he stated that he was willing to try the plan of turning the naval, military and postal appropriation over to different committees, although he felt sure such a course would result in increased expenditures. What was needed, however, was a rule that would allow the majority of the house to take up the special business of each day and stop filibusterings. He said he would offer an amendment to Mr. Springer's rules making this provision. As to Mr. Springer's proposition to reduce the number of the committees and consolidate the committees on banking and currency and coinage, weights and measures. He thought it was a blow aimed at the Bland silver policy, and it would be opposed by the south and west. Under the prevailing usages, the speaker will be guided in making up committees by their personnel at the last session, and courtesy would entitle Mr. Bland and his confreres to the control of the committee of coinage, weights and measures. If this committee is buried in a new finance committee, the speaker would be at liberty to construct this committee after the administration's ideas on the silver question.

Among the president's visitors this morning were Attorney-General Garland, Secretary Endicott, Commissioner of the District, Webb, Senator Vorhees, Representatives Warner and Beach. Speaker Carlisle. John C. Thompson, the new surveyor general of Wyoming, with Representative McGraw. The public reception this afternoon was unusually large and the majority of the visitors were ladies. Four of these usurped the newspaper correspondents' prerogative and stood behind the president to watch the people as they shook his hand. A little boy who accompanied them repeatedly gazed on the president and seemed proud of the fact. Two ladies took a little girl 5 years old aside and drilled her in a little speech to the effect that her father and grandfather had been Democrats, and she was a Democrat herself, but The little one toddled by the president utterly oblivious of his presence, and the speech was lost. The usual office seeker petitioned for an audience and was told to come to-morrow morning, when, it is needless to say, he will not be admitted. The last person on the scene was a full-blooded Chinaman in a blouse of blue, but his bashfulness kept him in the background and he failed to shake Mr. Cleveland by the hand.

Geronimo's Band.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Commissioner Atkins has received no official advices touching the reported murder of squaws and children of the White Mountain tribe by the Chinachuas. The White Mountain Indians had rendered excellent service to the government and had killed many of Geronimo's band, who sought to retaliate upon them by killing their squaws and children.

After reviewing the plan the committee made a personal examination of the sight of the proposed viaduct.

The Trouble at Bevier.

Special Telegram to The Star.

MACON, MO., Dec. 2.—Everything remained quiet at Bevier during last night. A conference was held between the different operators at a late hour yesterday evening, at which Mrs Loomis agreed to disarm the miners in his employ, as far as in his power, and to restrain them from firing upon the whites to repel an attack. The sheriff, accompanied by a number of citizens, spent the night in Bevier, but returned this morning, as there was apparently no need of their presence. Many of the miners, both white and black, resumed work this morning. Those who seem to be well posted believe the cessation of hostilities to be only temporary, and declare that there will be no lasting peace while the negroes are kept armed inside of the stockade, while others think it ended.

Forest Fires.

Special Telegram to The Star.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 2.—Reports of forest fires along the line of the Little Rock & Memphis railroad and the Texas railway, south of this point show destructive losses. The fire has been raging for days and extends in the interior embracing large tracts of valuable timber land, which, being dry, burns rapidly. Numbers of small farmers have been burned out and many narrow escapes from death are reported.

Liberals Delighted.

LONDON, Dec. 2, 6. P. M.—Election returns up to this hour show the Liberals have elected 228 of their candidates for parliament, the Conservatives 152 and the Nationalists 45. The Liberals have reduced their net gain to thirty-eight and are wild with delight over their retrieval of so much lost ground. In Birr division of Kings county, Malloy, Nationalist, is elected over Captain Wittesley Bernard, Conservative. For one of the divisions of Kerry Tom Harrington, Nationalist, is returned over Mr. Rowan, Conservative.

A Religious Congress.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 2.—The inter-denominational congress in the interest of the city evangelization will meet in this city Dec. 7. Its purpose is to discuss the evils that are threatening our great cities. It is intended to make this congress a permanent affair, and national and denominational in its character. Prominent divines in New York, Chicago, St. Louis and other cities have accepted an invitation to participate in the discussions of the congress.

At Green Springs station on the Indiana, Bloomington & Western railroad two car inspectors named Burke and Weetz were run down by a switch engine this morning and killed.

On the Way Home.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Dec. 2.—The Baltimore & Ohio special train, with members of the cabinet on board who attended Vice-President Hendricks's funeral, passed here on its return journey to Washington at 12:02. After a night's rest the party rose at an early hour, and greatly enjoyed the run over the mountains. Maj. Panghorn, who is in charge, expects to land the party safely in Washington at 3:30 o'clock.

HOLIDAY GIFTS.

The new month has opened most favorably for the purchase of Christmas Presents. Selections are being made with great prudence, and several articles of value have already been stored subject to shipment at the proper time. Remember last year's experience at our crowded counters the week before Christmas.

FRENCH AND AUSTRIAN BRONZES are very popular.

HAMMERED BRASS ARTICLES are being picked up freely; the assortment is limited.

FRENCH MARBLE CLOCKS prove appreciative Christmas Presents. Our own importations; consequently very low prices.

CHILDREN'S TOYS are also being selected. The most desirable "go first."

For Children particularly we will commence a

"Special Sale of Dolls"

On Friday next.

You will do well to secure some of those HANDKERCHIEFS for GIFTS at our SPECIAL SALE this week. They are going by the dozens.

When visiting our store drop into our Crockery Department and examine fine China.

Bisques are very popular, you know, and as our stock is 10 times larger than last year and prices so low you will save money by making selections for Holidays with us.
